

To Do List assignment:

You must have two separate to-do lists: one for home and one for work.

You must have an input box to enter a task.

You must have a way of selecting whether the task goes into the home list or the work list.

You must have a way of actually adding the task to the chosen list (button, enter key, etc)

If a person attempts to submit (click the button etc) without entering a task, you must display a message saying they must enter a task to add.

If the person tries to do that multiple times, the message should still display only once, not repeatedly.

Once a person actually enters a task again, the message should disappear.

There must be a way to delete a task that has been added.

There must be a way to clear all tasks that have been added.